The Bemocrate of New York and Brooklyn Get the Best Appointments-Senator Me-Carty Introduces a Bill Legalizing the Expenditures Made by the Kings County Supervisors for Celebrating the Columbus Anniversory, and for Which Many of Them Have Just Been Indicted.

ALBANY, Jan. Q. On account of the Governor's reception, which was to be held immediately after the session of the Legislature this evening, most of the Senators and Assemblymen were respleadent in evening dress when they took their scats. Speaker Sulzer soon after the Assembly was called to order announced the committees. Owing to the decreased number of Republicans, the Speaker was able to give general satisfaction to the old Democratic members.

The appointments are well received by the Assembly. They are especially commended by the New York and Brooklyn Democrats, who are a majority of the Democrats of the Assembly and who get the best appointments. The Brooklyn members in particular are pleased with their treatment, which was most generous. KINGS COUNTY DEMOCRATS.

The Old Offers of the General Committee Reelected-Republican Fight on To-night, The first meeting of the new Democratic General Committee of Kings county was sheld last night in the hall of the organization, in the Thomas Jefferson, in Brooklyn.

The chief business on hand was the election of officers, and this went through smoothly and harmoniously. All the old officers had managed the affairs of the committee so admirably last year that they were rewarded with a unanimous reflection. They are: Thomas F. Pearsall. President: Thomas J.

Kenna. First Vice-President; Andrew Fitzgibbons, Second Vice-President; Peter W. Birck. John P. Eagan, Assistant Secretary: John Cot-John P. Eagan, Assistant Secretary; John Cottier, Corresponding Secretary; Charles H. Otis, Treasurer, and James H. Flynn, Collector.

The election of Veteran Secretary Furey was made with great selat. Mr. Furey has held the place for ten years, and upon his stalwart shoulders has been placed the heavy burdens of each campaign. He will probably be rewarded for his arduous labors for the Kings county Democracy this year with the nomination for Sheriff.

The committee adjourned after approving of the expulsion of some members of the Twelfth and Fourteenth Ward Associations for disjoyalty at the recent election.

the expulsion of some members of the Twelfth and Fourteenth Ward Associations for disloyalty at the recent election.

Matters will not probably be so harmonious to-night at the organization of the new Republican General Committee in the Criterion Theatre. Rival tickets have been put up by the Nathan and Willis factions, the former being headed by W. J. Buttling for Chairman and the latter by Benjamin F. Blair.

All thought of compromise has been abandoned, and the fight is to be to a finish. Each side claims to have a majority of the delegates already pledged, and the result will probably be in doubt until the votes are counted.

If Willis and his delegates are beaten and the plan of reorganization modelled after the Philadelphia election district system is indefinitely posponed, there may be a bolt and the formation of two separata General Committees. In anticipation of a row, a squad of policemen will be detailed to duty at the Criterion Theatre to-night.

A WARM FRIEND OF MURPHY'S.

The Son of Lucius Robinson Speaks in Highest Terms of Our Next Senator.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. S .- A reporter called Lucius Robinson, to-day and asked him whether there was any truth in the recent statement of a New York paper that his relations with the Hon. Edward Murphy, Jr., were less pleasant than formerly, or that he had interfered to his harm in the Elmira charter election of last spring. The Mayor laughed and said:

"Not one word; not even a shadow of truth. Edward Murphy. Jr., was to my late father, and has always been to myself, the most loyal and devoted of friends. Nothing has ever happened to mar the pleasant relations which have existed between us for many years, and the continuance of which I have no don't whatever. Any kindness, personal or political, which Mr. Murphy could do me has always been freely extended, and I am foreclosed from any act of hostility to him or his friends. By the same fittle he is at liberty to call on mo for any service I can honorably render him, either now or hereafter. As for Mr. Murphy's candidacy for the Senate. I know very little. I should hardly think, with my knowledge of his tastes and inclinations, that he would wish to be United States Senator. He is a far abler man than he is generally accounted, but his gifts seem to me to run more to active administrative labors then to Senatorial duties. I do not think, that, if elected, he would be found in hostility to the Administration of President Cleveland, or in any position but that which he has always occupied, of straightforward, active Democracy." Edward Murphy. Jr., was to my late father,

Kings County's Delegation to Vote for

As has been all along foreshadowed in THE Sun, the Kings county delegation will make the nomination of Mr. Murphy unanimous. Yesterday it was announced on trusty authority that Hugh McLaughtin had instructed the two Democratic Senators and seventeen Assemblymen from Kings county to attend the regular caucus at Albany to-morrow night and vote for Mr. Murphy on the first ballot. No opposition candidate from Kings county will be named, and nothing, it is expected, will occur at the caucus to indicate that Mr. McLaughlin at the caucus to indicate that Mr. McLaughlin is not in perfect accord with Senator Hill, Gov. Flower, Richard Croker, Lieut-Gov. Sheehan, and the other State leaders.

It is no longer a secret among the Democratic politicians in Brooklyn that the Cieveland manifesto really had the effect of strengthening Mr. Murphy with the Kingscounty leaders, and that Mr. McLaughlin considered Mr. Cleveland's action very ill-advised.

Tammany in Texas Is for Murphy.

Secretary John B. McGoldrick of the Tammany Hall General Committee received yesterday a copy of resolutions adopted by the Tammany Society of Dallas, Tex., endorsing the candidacy of Edward Murphy, Jr., for Senstor, as follows: In view of the fact that the Hon. Edward Murphy, Jr., is the choice of the working femocracy of the Jr., is the choice of the working I emerged Murphy, Br., is the choice of the working I emerged of the Rate of New York, and in view of his ability and all ness and of his noble and gigantic efforts for the success of the national Democracy, he if Ecoloid, By the Executive Committee of Texas Tammany, that we indorse the Hon. NEW JERSEY'S NEXT SENATOR. Newark's Candidate Apparently Has the Lead Over Gov. Abbett.

TEENTON, Jan. 9. - The Legislature will convene at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Most of the members have arrived and are busy canvassing the situation.

The indications are that now that Senator Michael T. Barrett of Essex is out of the contest, Senator Robert Adrian will be elected President of the Senate. Assemblyman Thomas Flynn of Passaic will probably be chosen Speaker of the House.

The contest for United States Senatorship between tioy. Abbett and James Smith, Jr., of Newark, is close and warm. Both sides claim to leave a sufficient number of votes to elect, but the outlook is that Smith is decidedly in the lead and that if he can hold his forces together for the two weeks which will have to elapse before balloting for Senator commences, he will be pretty sure of winning, even though he does not obtain any accession to his ranks in the mean time. Michael T. Barrett of Essex is out of the con

Wyoming's Senatorial Struggle CHEYESNE. Wy., Jan. O. - With the first balot probably two weeks off, the Senatoria fight is hotter than a prairie fire. Efforts have been made by the opponents of Mr. Baxter to have that gentleman officially read out of the party on account of his alleged connection with the raid into Johnson county last spring.

To circumvent this the friends of Mr. Baxter caused to be held a meeting of representative Democrats, who expressed confidence in his lealty and unswerving devotion to the party. It is an up-hill fight for Mr. Baxter, but he is battling boldly and says himself that he is reasonably certain of success.

Mr. New and his forces are jubliant. They say the North can never go to Baxter.

In caucus this alternoon the desegates from New's county endorsed him. This gives him an advantage which Baxter will find very hard to overcome.

At a meeting this afternoon the Populists, five in number, named William Hinton, the free silver man of 1 ninta county, for the Sentatorship. His candidacy is regarded as merely formal, and it is the belief of all that the third party will act with the Democratic party. fealty and unswerving devotion to the party.

Their marriage took place about twenty-one years ago. Capt. Williams a acquaintance with Air. Walford antedates that event, and their close friend-ship remained uninterrupted until the Captain, as alleged, recently made the startling discoveries on which the suits are based.

So warm was the friendship existing between Capt. Williams and Mr. Walford that the latter on the birth of his oldest daughter twenty years ago named her after Capt. Williams wife. Capt. Williams's profession kept him at sen for prolonged periods, and during his absence Jirs. Williams was a constant visitor at Mr. Walford's house. Occasionally Mrs. Williams ancompanied her husband on his vorages, but as a general rule she stayed behind. Capt. Williams and his wife never had any children of their own, but the latter always manifested a deep and almost maternal affection for the two daughters of Mr. Walford.

Capt. Williams had been remarkably successful in his seafaring ventures, and in 1981 he became a shipowner himself. In that year Mr. Walford was a partner in the firm of H. B. Bailey & Co., ship brokers, at 51 South street, and it was at Mr. Walford's suggestion, as Capt. Williams alleges, that he purchased a third interest in the bark Nadio. Two years later, again at the suggestion of Mr. Walford, Capt. Williams sold out his share in the Sadie and purchased a like interest in the bark Charlestown.

It was about this time, as Capt. Williams experience before they were taken off the bark. The Navarch sailed from Philadelphia leaving the capes of the Delaware. Every thing went well with her, however, until Dec.

21, when she encountered a terrific hurricane. The weather was bitterly cold, and overything about deck was covered with ice.

During the storm one of the masts was carried away. Capt. Hilton was struck by a falling spar and fatally injured. Everything possible under the circumstances was done for him. but he died shortly after the accident. The first officer took charge of the bark.

The day after Capt. Hilton's death a tremendous sea boarded the bark, carrying overboard the first officer and two of the crew. The command of the vessel now devolved on the second mate, who knew little of navigation. Short-handed, and with the bark making water, he decided to stand away for the Azores. The situation on the bark became worse and worse, and finally, as it was thought she would founder, it was decided to abandon her when a vessel came along that would take the crew off. A signal of distress was holsted.

On Dec. 30 the French steamer Marseille. Capt. Grandillen, bound from New Orieans for Havre and Antwerp, came up with the bark near the Azore islands and took off the eleven men on board of her.

and purchased a like interest in the bark Charlestown.

It was about this time, as Capt, Williams further avers, that his friend Mr. Walford made still another suggestion. Mr. Walford told him that he was engaged in a very perilous business. Life on the ocean was uncertain, and a sudden squall might come up at any moment, wreck the ship, and send Capt. Williams to a watery grave. Under such circumstances it was his duty to make all necessary provision for his wife and to leave her as unembarrassed as possible in case the hapless fate which hefalls so many salfors should be his. Capt. Williams adopted Mr. Walford's advice, transferred his interest in the bark Charlestown to his wife, and also had his accounts in several savings hanks made out in OTHER CASUALTIES.

BERMUDA, Jan. 5.—The schooner Francis A. Rice, from St. Martin's, which put in on Jan. 2 in distress, is bound to Pubnico, N. S., with a cargo of salt. She encountered a heavy gale and a high sea, which boarded the vessel on the weather bow, carrying away the cathead and breaking the bowsprit. As the vessel was badly crippled and leaking, she had to bear up for Bermuda. Her damages are being repaired.

The barkentine Merritt from North Sydney, C. B., with coal for St. John, N. B., was towed into the harbor of St. George's on Jan. 1. She had her decks swept and cabin illied with water. The vessel lost her water, boat gallows, hatches, and backstays. The seas made a clean breach over her, straining the topsides and causing her to leak so badly that the crew were forced to keep continually at the pumps to prevent her from foundering. Finding that the vessel could not reach her port of destination she bore up for Bermuda, and is awaiting instructions.

on board prevented the men from getting and as it was found impossible to get into any advice, transferred his interest in the bark Charlestown to his wite, and also had his accounts in several savings hanks made out in his wife's name, besides giving her a full title to all the furniture and other belongings. After he had made these satisfactory arrangements for his wife, Capt. Williams went to see more happy than he had ever done before.

In 1885, when Capt. Williams sold his wife's interest in the Charlestown and with it purchased a three-eighths interest in the bark Lucille, the ownership in the latter vessel was also assigned to life. Williams. Not long afterward the Lucille foundered near the island of Nassau and she was condemned and sold. The insurance on the vessel was collected by Broker Walford, and Mrs. Williams received $11,000 as het share. In his complaint Capt. Williams says that his wife fold him that she had received the money, but that he never got a cent of it.

Early in the year 1881, Capt. Williams says that Mr. Walford came to him shu told him that him domestic affairs were in a vory unpleasant prelicament. His wife, he said, had become a drunkard and made things so disagreeable for their neighbors that he was obliged to change his residence frequently. If Capt, Williams At first Capt. Williams objected to the proposition, but finally after consulting with his wife, who remarked that she "would try them for a while," the boarding proposition was adopted, and when Capt. Williams next went to sea Mr. Walford, his wife, and two daughters were installed in the Captain's house, which was then in President street. tain's house, which was then in President street.

For two years nothing eventful took place, but in February, 1888, the tragedy which has been already referred to in this narrative occurred. Capt. Williams was at that time at a South American port, and it was not until his return that he learned that Mrs. Walford had disappeared mysteriously from the President street house, and going to Haitlax bad shot herself in the Queen's Hotel at that place. On his return to Brocklyn Capt. Williams made some inquiries, and, from some things he learned, concluded that Mrs. Walford's suicide was brought about through a realization of the fact that her husband had transferred his affections from her to the wile of Capt. Williams SIGMARINGEN, Jap. 9.- This town is rapidly filling with royal personages to witness the marriage to-morrow of Ferdinand, Crown Prince of Roumania, and Princess Marie, eldest daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh. Princess Marie is half Russian, her mother the fact that her husband had transferred his affections from her to the wife of Capt. Williams.

Some letters which Mrs. Walford had le't behind her tended to strengthen the Captain's suspicions, and he suggested to Mr. Walford that it would be beiter for all concerned if Mr. Walford and his daughters went to board elsewhere. Mr. Walford, however, succeeded in allaying the Captain's suspicions, who, before taking his next voyage secured the preity cottage in Flatbush, and consented that Mr. Walford and his daughters should go there and continue to live with his wise. In the winter of 1880 Capt. Williams's suspicions were again aroused, and he determined that a complete separation should take place between his wife and the Walfords. He told his wife that Mr. Walfords and his daughters should be porified to get out and seek other quarters. Mrs. Williams cooly replied: "Well, if he goes I go, too."

Capt. Williams then took the direction of affairs into his own hands and told Mr. Walfords to ga. The latter, meanwhile, had secured a lease of the Flatbush house in his own name, so that, instead of being compelled to quit himself, he had determined not to allow Capt. Williams to cross the threshold of the house. The Captain, after satisfying himself that he could not disturb Mr. Walford in the possession of the premises or induce his wife to leave it, again went to see, and he says that he has delayed bringing the suits for nearly two years so as to give his wife ample opportunity to come back to him and give up Mr. Walford. Finally, finding that she did not intend to do one thing or the other, or in restore his money, property, and even the furniture in the Flatbush house, he reisorted to legal measures. Mr. Walford and Mrs. Williams have twenty days to make their answer. It is understood that both will dony the allegation of infidelity, and that they will represent that their relations have never heen closer than those of landlord and housekeeper. being the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna. only daughter of Czar Alexander II. Princess Marie is said to be Russian in her tendencies and, as her character is a much stronger one than her husband's, her influence, before and after she reaches the throne, will be exerted in favor of Russia. It is said that to prevent the possibility of a direct heir being born to succeed to the throne of Roumania, which would prevent his daughter becoming Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh secured the written consent of King Charles not to marry again in the event of Queen Elizabeth's death.

Prince Ferdinand is the second son of Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, who is the elder brother of King Charles of Roumania, king Charles is childless, his only daughter having died from diphtheria shortly after her birth in 1874. In 1889 Prince Leopold renounced his rights to the succession in favor of his son. Prince William. The latter, in turn, renounced his rights in favor of his brother. Prince Ferdinand, in 1888, and in 1888, king Charles issued a decree creating him Prince of Houmania.

The Queen of Roumania has written several well-known works of prose and poetry under the nom de plane of "Carmen Sylva." Her efforts to bring about a marriage between Prince Ferdinand and Mile. Vacaresco, one of her maids of honor, are well remembered.

The proposed match was finally broken off, much to the disgust of the Queen, who, it is said, has written to the Crown Prince telling him she wants never to see him again. It is also said that after the betrottal of the Crown Prince to Princess Mario was announced. Mile. Vacaresco amused herself by malling every week to the Princess one of the love letters written to her Mile. Vacaresco by Prince Ferdinand. The Duke of Edinburgh and Ring Charles interposed, and succeeded in stopping this annoyance to the Princess.

A Story that Brigands Had Captured the Empress. VIENNA, Jan. 9.-An enormous sensation has been caused by the report that Spanish brigands have captured the Empress Elizabeth o Austria, and propose to hold the imperial lady Austria, and propose to hold the imperial lady for ransom. The Government professes to know nothing about any such rumor, and pothing seems to be known on the subject at Madrid. When last heard of the Empress was rachting near the Balearie Islands.

The truth of the story concerning the capture of the Empress Elizabeth by brigands is denied officially this evening.

THEY WERE "CAPTAIN HERNE" AND

The War Pinyat the Union Square Contained Edward J. Henley and a Battle Scene-Both Were Very Vivid and Violent.

People who go much to the theatre know Edward J. Henley as a fercely melodramatic actor. Well, he is a coolug, warbling expositor of shy gentleness by comparison with some parts of the play in which he was the hero at the Union Square last evening. The third act contained the capture of a rebel fort near Vicksburg. Mr. Henley was the leader of the assaulting party. Lawrence Hanley. the handsome actor who used to declaim Marchany with Booth and Barrett, was here in command of the stronghold. He was imper-sonating, also, the half brother of Mr. Henley. There-had been a lot of trouble between them over two women, but most of the audience had early given up all effort to comprehend the family affair. But in this battle scene the relative positions of the two men were clear and graphic. One brandished his sword and adjured his troops to delend the breastworks. The other incited his soldiers to an attack. There was a stirring minute or two of mimic warfare. The Northerners overpowered the Southerners. The half brothers faced each other furiously, and one fell with a swordthrust from his antagonist. The curtain shut out an exceedingly picturesque tableau.

That was all that anybody could admire in "Captain Herne," and the rest of it was ridi-culed. A drama more nearly devoid of merit seldom gets a performance anywhere, and hardly ever in a Broadway theatre. It was plain that the authoress, Margaret Barrett Smith, was an amateur playwright. Her set of characters did the most proposterous things imaginable. They came and went without errands. They committed strange acts without apparent motives, and they talked nonsense.

apparent motives, and they talked nonsense. The observers of the performance sat in wonder, half amused by its dominant idiocy, half resentful of it, and wondering how it had ever come to pass.

Dorothy Dene, a very handsome English actress, whom London artists have distinguished on canvas, went down in the general failure. Indeed, she contributed to it, for she had not memorized her part, or else its lack of coherent meaning made her forget its words. There were several competent players in the cast, but the best freatment could not have saved the wretched stuff from rejection, and so "Captain Herne" was a flasco.

There was a new play at Miner's People's Theatre last evening, entitled "At the Carnival," and Edward Weitzel and Fred S. Isham were the authors. Its scenes were located in Rome and Paris. and told the story of a street singer and told the story of a street singer, Lucia, whose mother was formerly a successful opera singer in Paris, but now reduced and compelled to assist her daughter in her work in the streets. The daughter was separated from the suitor whom she loved by trickery, and, while in despair at her loss, she was led into marriage with the man who had caused her grief.

Then Lucia was seen as a beloved but unloving wife, who still cherished memories of her sweetheart and won the plaudits of all l'aris as a prima donna. Here she again met the man she loved, and matters were further complicated by his engagement to another. Lucia's meetings with her former sweetheart were exaggerated in the public prints, and in a quarrel with her husband shekilled him and later took boison and expired in the arms of her sweetheart.

a quarrel with her husband she killed him and laiser took poison and expired in the arms of her sweetheart.

This story afforded many opportunities for awakening strong dramatic interest, but the authors had used far too many words, so that those situations were much weakened. The incidents were not put together gracefully, and this fault made the play's progress very uneven. Acts three and four went off so poorly that laughter was general in passages that were intended to be tearful. With the audience in such a mood the weak spots in the cast, and there were one or two that were very apparent, were discovered, and some attempt was made to empty them. The last act, however, was better, and it was only fair to note that the strongest moment of the piece was the climax of the final curtain.

The character who was responsible for nearly all the villainy was described in the programme as "a Parisian journalist." His duties and methods made him impossible as a journalist of any nationality, and his unnatural portrayal was a biot.

Eva Mountford had the rôle of the singer and labored faithfully. Her death scene was the heat part of her work. Jennie Reifferth, Basil West, Elmer Grandin, and Samuel Edwards were capable in their several parts, but the play as it is at present is far from being a good one.

A Resort to Dynamite Bombs-Socialists

Benlin, Jan. 9.- A dynamite bomb was exploded in Geisenkirchen this afternoon. Two small hotels which stand on either side of the alley in which the bomb was placed were fell from the walls. Although several persons were passing in the street hardly twenty yards away, nobody was injured. The man who placed the bomb has not been caught. supposed to be an Anarchist emissary from the Saar district, who has gone to the mining region around Gelsenkirchen for the purpose of fomenting a strike there in sympathy with the movement on the Saar.

The miners in the district surrounding Forbach, in Lorraine, have been uneasy for some time, and the Socialists, taking advantage of their discontent, have sought to incite the men to strike. They endeavored to get the miners to hold a meeting yesterday for the purpose of organizing a strike, but the Government forbade the meeting. Notwithstanding the prohibition, the miners attempted to assemble at the place agreed upon. A large number of police were present, however, and provented the meeting from being held. Reyond mutterings and cursing, no opposition was offered to the police. The almost inevitable failure of the strikers in other German mining districts seems to have had no effect upon the Forbach miners, but this is due entirely to the extreme Socialists, who, by their pernicious activity, seek to gain recruits to their ranks.

Numerous miners' meetings were held this afternoon in the Westphaliah and Rhenish coal districts. The Socialist element was well in evidence everywhere, and several resolutions favoring a general strike were passed.

In most cases, however, the resolutions were without effect, and the men continue to work, atthough, were strong leaders present, the whole working forces of both districts would be brought out within twenty-four hours. A thousand men struck near Essen, and at Gelsenkirchen there was a partial cossation of work at nightfall.

Reports from several other places show that a few hundred men here and there in Westphalia add the Dusseldorf district have left the pits, but as yet there is nothing like a general strike.

BURGHARD-EHRET.

The Third Daughter of the Millionaire Brewer Wedded Last Evening. The home of the wealthy brewer, Mr. George Ehret, 1,197 Park avenue, was transformed last evening into a veritable flower garden for the nuptlais, of his third daughter, Miss Josephine Frances Ehret, and Mr. Edward Martin Burghard, a young and rising lawyer of this city, which took place at 6 o'clock. It seemed a pity that a larger number of the family's friends had not been present to witness the magnificent floral display, but the poor health of the bride's mother made it necessary that the marriage should be performed with as little confusion as possible. Beyond the immediate members of the families there were present at the ceremony half a dozen friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ehret, who had witnessed their marriage nearly thirty years ago. All told, about thirty people were present at the ceremony and the dinner which followed.

The drawing room in which the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Lammel, rector of St. Joseph's German Catholic Church, was beautifully decorated with roses, orchids, japonicas, lilles of the valley, and carnations of every variety, and a profusion of tall palins and forn trees.

The bride and bridegfoom during the ceremony stood under a canopy of hemlock, interspersed with bride and Catharine Mermet roses. The rear drawing room was decked with American Heauty roses and greens. In this room Lander's band played during the evening.

BROOKLYN'S OFFICIAL SCANDAL

Four of the Indicted Supervisors Too III to The big batch of Brooklynites who have been indicted for corruption in disbursing and receiving the $60,000 expended on the Columbus celebration have all given ball, with four exceptions. These are Supervisors Jenkins, Baisley, Ly-nam, and Juengst, and their failure to respond to the summons of District Attorney Ridgway was satisfacterily explained yesterday by the presentation of medical certificates showing that each of them was confided to his house through illness. Messrs. Jenkins, Baisley, and Juengst are victims of rheumatism, and Mr. Lynam is suffering from rheumatism, and Mr. Lynam is suffering from an attack of pneumonia contracted by exposure on Columbus Day to the cold winds which swept over the Park plaza.

All the accused persons who are not physically disqualified will appear before Judge Moore, in the Court of Sessions, to plend to the indictments or to demur thereto. Just what action they will take has not been definitely determined, but tilere is no doubt that every possible legal expedient will be resorted to to prevent any of the cases from being brought to trial, although the three Aidermen who have been indicted profess anxiety for a judicial investigation. In legal circles the opinion prevails, apparently, that the Grand Jury went too far in spreading its drag net in the investigation of the Columbus celebration scandal. Se distinguished a lawyer as Gen. Wingate said: "I do not agree with the Grand Jury in its opinion that the city had no right to appropriate any money for the ceieright to appropriate any money for the cele-bration. There is no substantial ground for censuring Mayor Boody for signing the bills, which were properly audited."
